The programme explores the history, theory and practise of Film and Television Studies, and entails both multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary approaches, offering detailed study of wide-ranging visual texts. Students are encouraged to think and work independently, and to engage with debates at the forefront of humanities research. Students take a wide range of modules engaging with Film and Television Studies, and are taught discipline specific skills and methodologies via a variety of formative exercises and summative written assessment. Employability is built into the curriculum at every level via core and/or discipline specific modules, and employability events are also held.

S7 note S7	RELEVANT SUBJECT BENCHMARK STATEMENT(S) and details of how the Programme Specification aligns with these	The programme reflects the latest QAA subject benchmarking statement for Communication, Media, Film and Cultural studies. The BA in Film and Television Studies demonstrates the rich diversity of multidisciplinary studies, which is evident in the variety of critical and theoretical approaches to which students are introduced. The benchmarking statement for emphasises the “increasingly central role” played by “the cultural and communications industries” by which “forms of social and political organisation and creative expression are touched at every point by media forms and practices”. Accordingly, our programme explores the ways in which Film and Television Studies addresses the key questions identified by the benchmark statement concerning “questions of political economy”, “representation”, “aesthetics”, “discourse”, “production and distribution”, “consumption”, “identity”, and “ideology”. http://www.qaa.ac.uk/en/Publications/Documents/Subject-benchmark-statement-Communication-media-film-and-cultural-studies.pdf

S11 note S11	FURTHER INFORMATION (web link to further information)	https://www.uea.ac.uk/film-television-media/undergraduate-degrees
S12 note S12	COURSE HIGHLIGHTS (for publication in University Prospectus / Website /HEAR) Include succinct comments about employability, key skills and learning outcomes From their origins film and television have been the subject of debates about their aesthetic conventions, social and cultural significance, and their relationships to popular culture and other art forms. You will explore these issues and more, with opportunities to examine how they are organised industrially, how those who make film and television express their creativity, how films and television programmes work aesthetically, narratively and in terms of genre, and how they have been consumed. The course introduces you to histories of these media, to which contemporary understandings of them can be related. The course looks at both the interplay of film and television – how they have both contrasted and overlapped – as well as offering opportunities to examine each individually. You will benefit from our world-leading expertise in British film and television; feminist theory and criticism; audience and reception studies; popular cultural forms and genres. Year 1

	You will gain a thorough grounding in the key approaches and frameworks for thinking about film and television, which will underpin the rest of your degree. Central here are historical approaches, tracing the complex and interesting development of these media. You will also explore film and television as popular cultural forms, examining their social roles. Year 2 You will begin to focus on higher level questions of theory and genre, engaging with modules that draw on staff expertise. A range of optional modules supplement key theoretical topics, allowing you to shape your degree to your interests. As part of this you will be able to undertake some practical work if you wish. Year 3 Your learning comes together in the final year. It is here that you move onto more specialist topics directly related to staff's world leading expertise. You will have the opportunity to pursue your individual interests, including through a research dissertation, developing a project under the supervision of an academic member of staff.

PS3 PROGRAMME COHERENCE AND FEEDBACK CYCLES		note PS3
PS3.1 learning progression
How will progression in terms of skills, knowledge and understanding be reflected in the programme between modules in any one year and across the years as students progress through their course of study?		note PS3.1
Modules in Film and Television Studies progress from introductory approaches and survey modules in the first year, through increasing specialism in the second year and the year abroad, to advanced and independent research in final year.
PS3.2 feedback cycle
Please explain how assessments and feedback / feed forward support the coherence of the programme. Comment on number and types of assessment, both formative and summative; the types and format of feedback students will receive; and their sequencing. How will assessments and feedback impact on subsequent modules?		note PS3.2
Every module contains formative and summative assessment, and tutor's feedforward and feedback—in seminars, in tutorials, and on written work—is integral to students' learning and progression through the course.

PS4	EXAMINATIONS		note PS4

PS5	EQUALITY & WIDENING PARTICIPATION		note PS5
PS5.1	How do the admissions criteria specifically for this course ensure equality of opportunity for all applicants?
	Applications to the programme are assessed in accordance with University equal opportunities regulations.
PS5.2	What steps have been taken to ensure an inclusive curriculum?
	The curriculum has been designed to engage with issues of gender, race, class and sexuality, and fostering inclusivity on the level of the curriculum is central to the ethos of the programme.
PS5.3	In what ways do learning and teaching and assessment methods ensure inclusivity, reasonable adjustment and equality of opportunity?
	All learning, teaching and assessment is conducted in accordance with University equal opportunities regulations.

PS6	EMPLOYABILITY		note PS6
	How is employability embedded into the delivery of the course?

	Employability is embedded into the course in non-modular employability events, through employability-focused meetings with academic advisers, and is built into the design and delivery of modules at every level.
